

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE SEXUAL ASSAULT PREVENTION AND RESPONSE OFFICE

Victim Reporting Options Guide

Sexual assault is a crime that harms our Service members, erodes our readiness, and hinders our ability to field the ready force that the National Defense Strategy requires. Deciding whether to report a sexual assault is a deeply personal decision; however, reporting can be a gateway to recovery. The DoD's Unrestricted Reporting and Restricted Reporting options allow Service members who experience sexual assault to exercise control over how and when they engage with helping resources. Both reporting options allow victims to receive medical, legal, and advocacy services.

Unrestricted Report

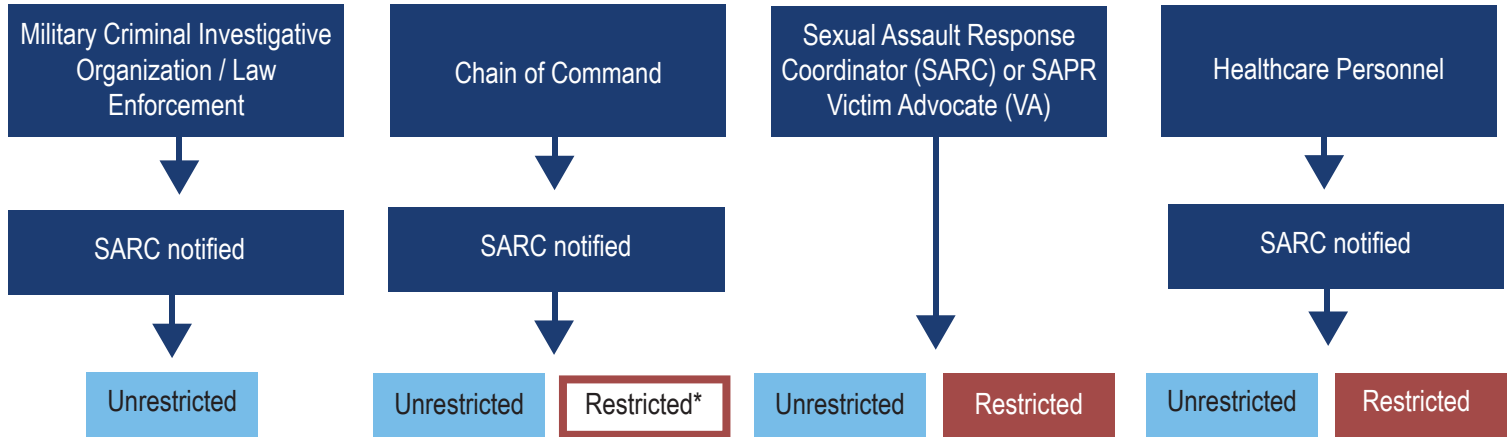

Allows adult victims of sexual assault to report crimes without requesting confidentiality of their allegations. DoD law enforcement initiates an investigation and the chain of command is notified. This option also allows reporting of retaliation related to a sexual assault report.

Restricted Report

Allows adult victims of sexual assault to confidentially report the crime to specified individuals without triggering an investigation. Information provided to the chain of command does not reveal personally identifying information. Only SARCs, SAPR VAs, and health care personnel can accept a Restricted Report.

When the victim discloses a sexual assault to...

*A victim who discloses a sexual assault to command may be eligible for a Restricted Report, unless disclosed to a law enforcement commander. Victims should always try to speak first to a SARC or SAPR VA to preserve both reporting options.
